

SEEPS Camp 2024

Call for Participants

August 4 - 6, 2024

Applications Due: June 21, 2024

Organized by the Society for Environmental Economics and Policy Studies
(SEEPS)

In 2021, the Society for Environmental Economics and Policy Studies (SEEPS) launched a new event called the SEEPS Camp. Following the success of the four SEEPS Camps, we are happy to announce to hold the in-person SEEPS Camp 2024 in August. The purpose of the Camp is to bring together a small group of outstanding Ph.D. students and young researchers who will lead the SEEPS in the future and to provide them with opportunities to interact with each other. We further aim at building a network among them who aspire to be leading environmental economists

Participants will present their research plans or outcomes and exchange ideas. They will also join a special session and discuss with mid-career researchers of the SEEPS who will share their experiences of an academic career development. The camp will be held in the Nasushiobara area, Tochigi Prefecture.

Dates:

August 4 to 6, 2024

Participation Cost:

Free

The SEEPS provides the travel costs within Japan, accommodation costs, and food expenses.

Venue:

Towa Pure Cottage, Float Villa NASU

<https://loop.co.jp/service/ipp/loopresortnasu>

<https://www.pure-cottages.jp/plan/337>

Address: 3375 Takakuotsu, Nasu-cho, Nasu-gun, Tochigi Prefecture, 325-0303

Participants are kindly requested to stay in one of the bedrooms with other participants of the same gender. Also, the toilet and bath are for co-use with other participants.

Organization committee members will stay in the different cottage. Please see the links above to know the details of the cottage.

Eligibility:

To apply for the SEEPS Camp 2024, you must hold a master's degree. The applicants would be a Ph.D. student, a business person who has received a master's degree within the past eight years, or an early career researcher who has received a Ph.D. within the past five years at the time of the application.

Non-members of SEEPS and those living outside Japan are also welcome, although the travel cost to Japan is not provided.

Application:

To apply, please send an email to the SEEPS office (seeps-post@as.bunken.co.jp).

Files to attach an email include:

- 1) Curriculum vitae (Please state whether you have a regular driver's license in Japan)
- 2) Research proposal (or abstract of your research paper) and a description of your motivation for studying environmental economics and policies.

(no more than 2 pages)

There are no requirements for formatting. Manuscripts should be in English or Japanese.

The application deadline is June 21, 2024. Eight participants at maximum will be selected. The result will be notified to you in the middle of July.

If you have any questions, please email Hide-Fumi Yokoo, at hidefumi.yokoo@r.hit u.ac.jp.

What to bring:

Laptop

Items required for your stay (e.g., cloths)

Driver license if you own

Some participants will be asked to drive rental cars. (Those who cannot drive can also participate.)

FYI: The program and overview of SEEPS Camp 2023

https://www.seeps.org/pdf/event/camp2023_progreport.pdf

Above is the content of last year's program. It is subject to change from here.

Organizing Committee:

Chair: Hide-Fumi Yokoo (Hitotsubashi University)

Local participation committee members: Keita Abe (Musashi University), Shinsuke Kyoji (Yamagata University), Kota Mameno (Tohoku University), Aline Mortha (Waseda University (PhD student)), Jie Yang (University of Toyama)

Logistics support committee members: Jiaying Wang (Sapporo Gakuin University), Iori Okamura (Ehime University), Hiroataka Kumamaru (Akita University), Yi-Chun Ko (Asian Growth Institute)